

UNSHOT ED 14
5-19-70

Chilian Leftist Presidential Candidate Refutes Illness:

Salvador Allende, the far leftist presidential candidate in Chile appeared on a scheduled national TV network to rebut widespread rumors of his having a severe heart attack. Although the show was pre-recorded, observers discounted the allegation that Allende is "on his last legs." Allende himself told the TV audience that he had a very bad case of the grippe compounded by tachycardia (rapid heart beat) [redacted]

Approved for Release
July 2000